

YANKS TAKE CLARK FIELD ON LUZON

CENTRAL TIME FAVORED FOR
ENTIRE STATEONLY TWO DETROIT
SOLONS AGAINST MEASURE

Lansing, Jan. 25 (AP)—Legislation to place the entire state on Central Time (slow) Time swept through the senate today with only two opposition votes being cast, but a rising argument over legal technicalities clouded the course of the measure.

Twenty-one senators, including Senator Clarence E. Reid of Detroit, voted for the bill and two Detroit Democrats, Senators Stanley Novak and Charles N. Youngblood, voted against it.

The four other senators from Wayne county, where opposition to the bill is strongest, were not present.

Republicans lacked the additional vote to give the measure immediate effect, and around that question the controversy arose.

House Stand Uncertain

Senate leaders said they were sure they could give the bill immediate effect later, but doubts arose as to whether the necessary two-thirds majority could be mustered in the house where big city Democrats can block such a vote.

Senator Elmer R. Porter, Blissfield Republican who sponsored the measure, said he planned to have the bill amended in the house to fix a specific time for it to become effective, rather than ask immediate effect and have it effective as soon as the governor signs it. Parliamentarians pointed out such a course still would require a two-thirds vote.

Opposition to the measure largely has been silent thus far. In Detroit, Paul T. Dwyer, chief assistant corporation counsel, declared in an opinion the city's charter gave the common council power to fix any time standard it chooses. It was expected the city would remain on Eastern War (fast) Time.

Governor Embarrassed
Passage of the Porter bill was expected to embarrass Governor Kelly, who two years ago engineered the existing compromise under which cities may vote to remain on fast time if they desire.

A constitutional amendment to give local governments one-third of state sales tax revenues according to a formula to be written by the legislature was introduced by Senator Naskell L. Nichols, Jackson Republican.

Senator Don Vanderwerf, Fremont Republican, sponsored a bill urged for several sessions by organized sportsmen to give the state conservation department discretion to fix hunting and fishing seasons and limits.

Senators Nichols and Ivan A. Johnston, Mt. Clemens Republican, sponsored legislation to raise the salaries of the commissioners of labor and industry from $5,500 a year and $6,500 a year to $7,000 a year; members of the public service commission from $6,000 to $7,500, and the clerk of the state supreme court from $6,000 to $7,500 a year.

Six Bills Passed
Nichols also sponsored a bill aimed at a controversy in some counties with the state welfare department; it would legalize investigation of relief applications by county supervisors where the type of relief involved is not financed jointly by state and federal funds.

Passing six bills, the senate adjourned.

Wallace Proposes
Checkup On Jones'
Lending Agencies

BY TOM REEDY

Washington, Jan. 25. (AP)—Henry A. Wallace challenged congress today to find out if Jesse Jones administered the government's giant lending agencies for the good of all. For himself, Wallace said he would do the job for the common man and small business.

Without naming the man President Roosevelt wants him to succeed as secretary of commerce and head of the multi-billion dollar RFC, Wallace lashed back at Jones who yesterday called him unqualified to preside over such big business matters.

Wallace did it this way—he proposed to the senate commerce committee that congress investigate the administration of the lending agencies to determine if they should be stripped from the commerce department.

The committee is considering such a divorce in a proposal by Senator George (D-Ga.).

The day's proceedings wound up in an executive session after which Chairman Bailey (D-N.C.) announced the committee would vote tomorrow afternoon on the George Bill.

More Jobs Wanted

Wallace said he saw for himself an opportunity to handle both tasks as to:

1—Help provide 60,000,000 jobs at increased wages.

2—Set up new methods of financing for small business which he said has been squeezed ever since the Federal Reserve System was established in 1913.

Wallace spent a large part of the morning on prepared testimony, but some questions were interjected by committee members in that session, and he was examined ever more closely after a brief luncheon recess.

Senator Brewster (R-Me.) recalled President Roosevelt's letter dismissing Jones and frankly conceding the Wallace appointment was a reward for political services.

Wallace said he could "assure" Brewster that he would not operate on such a basis, declaring he would function as he did when he was secretary of agriculture. Then not even James A. Farley, former Democratic national chairman, "ever forced me" to accept a political appointee who did not possess the merit for the job, Wallace said.

STILWELL GETS
COMMAND POSTGeneral Heads Ground
Forces; Next Job May Be To Whip Japan

BY JAMES D. WHITE

Washington, Jan. 25 (AP)—In a move weighted with meaning for Japan, the war department today named General Joseph W. Stilwell to command army ground forces.

Stilwell is the American general with the longest experience in Japanese military methods. He assumes command of the ground forces at a time when the task of reorganizing and training them for a major assault against Japan—either on Japanese or Chinese soil or both—appears to be pressing for attention.

Stilwell replaces General Ben Lear, who has been assigned as deputy commander in the European theater in charge of administrative matters concerning American troops.

The fact that both Lear and his predecessor, Gen. Leslie McNair, received important overseas assignments after heading the ground forces strengthens speculation here that Stilwell's next job is likely to be back in the field, leading American troops in the final crushing of Japan.

Secretary of War Stimson underscored the announcement of Stilwell's new job by reading a message from Lt. Gen. Dan Sultan in Burma which expressed regret that "Vinegar Joe" was not on hand for the triumphal reopening of the Burma road to China.

Stalin Contacted
By Eisenhower, Is

New York, Jan. 25. (AP)—Merrill Mueller, NBC reporter who has just returned to this country from supreme Allied headquarters at Paris, said in a censored broadcast tonight that "Gen. Eisenhower has established contact with Marshal Stalin."

Mueller said he learned a little over a week ago during a talk with the supreme commander that this "contact" was now in effect. He did not disclose how the liaison was maintained.

NORTHEAST HIT
BY COLD WAVEBlizzard Swoops Down
On New England And
New York

(By The Associated Press)

Riding on the tail of blizzard-like snows, the winter's most severe cold wave engulfed the northeast yesterday (Thursday) plunging temperatures to record-smashing below zero markings.

Seven deaths in New England and New York were attributed to the cold blast.

High winds, which accompanied the cold, whipped up snowdrifts in West Virginia, Pennsylvania and upper New York state, blocking roads, disrupting transportation, stranding automobiles and, in one case, marooning a school bus.

At Homer, N. Y., 30 draftees were stranded overnight. They had arrived on a night train to take army and navy physical examinations.

To meet transportation difficulties, baby carriages were used in Waltham, Mass., to carry coal. Several Bay state communities were reported short of coal and in Quincy, officials ordered all anthracite pooled and distributed by police.

Cold weather also struck Michigan, where a -26 reading was reported at Pellston, but the rest of the midwest had mild weather.

Severe Penalties
Given Bogus Gas
Stamp Traffickers

Detroit, Jan. 25 (AP)—Federal Judge Frank A. Picard imposed sentences ranging up to one year in prison and $1,000 fine today on 32 persons accused of dealing in counterfeit gasoline coupons or of selling legitimate coupons to dealers.

Addressing the defendants, the judge referred to the recent German counter-offensive which he said caused "perhaps 100,000" United States casualties, and added:

"I am not saying you are to blame for that, but certainly you didn't do anything that hurt the German armies when you engaged in the sale of counterfeit gasoline stamps—coupons for gasoline on the home front that was badly needed."

Heaviest penalty—one year imprisonment and $1,000 fine—was imposed on Frank J. Amaradio, 26, Detroit, who was convicted of selling A-12 coupons to dealers.

Farmer's Wife Puts
108 Drift-Stranded
Motorists To Bed

Churchville, N. Y., Jan. 25. (AP)—A farmer's wife who bunked 108 storm-stranded motorists in her nine-room house last night said today, "What an experience! I wouldn't want to do it every night."

Mrs. James W. Ehrmentraut, 26, was thrust into her hostess role when wind piled snowdrifts on a nearby icy road. Motorist after motorist failed to negotiate the incline and knocked on the Ehrmentraut door for aid.

When automobiles, three abreast, lined the road for half a mile, Mrs. Ehrmentraut thanked providence a grocery and brewery truck were among the vehicles stalled.

The guests slept in the farms three bedrooms, on chairs, but most on the floor.

One plump girl was very embarrassed when she broke the bed, the hostess said.

REDS ENTRAP
200,000 NAZIS
ALONG BALTICODER LINE BROKEN;
CITY OF BRESLAU
UNDER SIEGE

BY W. W. HERCHER

London, Friday, Jan. 26 (AP)—The Red army's trunk railway escape route out of half-conquered East Prussia yesterday, sealing off perhaps 200,000 German troops, while Berlin announced that other Soviet units had pierced the upper Oder river defense line on a 125-mile front on both sides of besieged Breslau, Silesian capital.

The German news agency DNB said the Russian invaders of East Prussia, totalling more than 2,325,000 men, had driven a wedge to the Baltic coast at Elbing in one of the greatest encirclement operations in history, and had broken into Elbing itself, 30 miles southeast of Danzig.

Escape Railway Cut

While Moscow did not officially confirm this report the Soviet communiqué did announce the capture of Briensdorf, nine miles east of Elbing, and Baumgarth, 12 miles to the south. In taking Briensdorf the Russians cut the last Berlin-Königsberg trunk railway.

Capturing more than 1,500 towns and villages on the 14th day of their gigantic push toward the heart of Germany, the Russians drove to within five miles east of Poznan, western Polish stronghold and "gateway to Berlin," with the capture of Swarzedz, Murowanogolina, 10 miles north of Poznan, also fell as the Russians surged up to the Warta river and prepared to cross that barrier in a flanking movement on Poznan.

With the capture of Swarzedz the Russians now were 142 miles east of Berlin, the closest announced point on the direct road to the Reich capital. The Soviet army newspaper Red Star, however, said some units were about 125 miles from the Nazi capital, presumably to the southeast.

Food Source Gone

Pushing westward across the base of the Polish corridor north of Poznan the Russians in a 10-mile advance seized Keynia, 22 miles from the German Pomeranian frontier and 125 miles southeast of the Baltic port of Stettin.

Units of two Soviet armies seized a total of 700 towns and villages in East Prussia as they closed in steadily on Königsberg, East Prussian capital and central base for the outnumbered Germans who have lost approximately half of the 14,283-square-mile eastern-most Reich province.

Soviet front dispatches said thousands of Russian, French and Polish civilians, impressed into fortification work by the Germans, had been liberated, and that whole loads of tanks, munitions and other military supplies had been captured intact by Gen. Ivan Cherniakhovsky's Third White Russian army.

In their conquest of East Prussia the Russians were not only wiping out crack units of the German army and thousands of home army recruits, but were robbing Berlin and northern Germany of a great food source.

Election Is Won
By AFL Over CIO
In Western Union

Washington, Jan. 25 (AP)—The AFL's three organizations in the Western Union system won collective bargaining elections in virtually all of the United States today, leaving the CIO in control only in metropolitan New York area.

The election, conducted by the National Labor Relations Board, was the outgrowth of the merger of Western Union and Postal Telegraph companies. The AFL previously had represented the workers in the Western Union system and the CIO union had bargaining rights for Postal employees.

The three AFL unions—the Commercial Telegraphers Union, International Brotherhood of Electric Workers, and the Federal Labor Union—previously had agreed on jurisdictional lines between them and they will be designated as bargaining agents for certain employees on that basis.

The AFL won six of seven divisional elections.

Hitler Orders
Scorched Soil
On East Front

BY RICHARD KASISCHKE

London, Jan. 25 (AP)—Adolf Hitler tonight categorically ordered German commanders on the eastern front to scorch every inch of German soil they abandon, while Germany was forced to clamp a state of siege on populations of Prague and eastern Czechoslovakian cities rebelling as the Red army approaches.

The "scorched earth" order and other signs indicated the Nazis may be despairing of stemming the Russian tide, now reported only 125 miles from Berlin—or of making an early return to the yielded territory.

As hordes of homeless Germans trudged miserably back to trench-digging Berlin, Propaganda Minister Paul Joseph Goebbels wailed his old cry that the Reich "now stands deserted and alone against Russian masses surpassing all previous imagination."

Berlin disclosed the Czechoslovak state of siege and admitted Nazi forces were retreating before Red armies driving approximately 125 miles from Prague, the old Czechoslovak capital.

People Fight Gestapo

Moscow said workers had gone on strike in Prague and that people were "fighting the gestapo in various districts" in an attempt to prevent German evacuation of machinery and material.

Swiss reports by way of Moscow predicted Hitler would speak on the 12th anniversary of his chancellorship January 30, appealing to the Germans to "resist to the last drop of blood."

"There is simply no alternative," cried Goebbels. "We are forced to find a solution. How could we ask our enemies to show understanding?"

Goebbels, renewing an old propaganda theme, claimed that Germany—left in the lurch by its allies—"defending the lives of the whole civilized world," even including the Allied armies in the west and the Atlantic charter in his claim.

Within Berlin, continental reports said, earthworks and anti-tank ditches were being dug as German military commentators admitted new German army retreats and still no large-scale measures to stop the Russian drive.

Civilian refugees were streaming westward from East Prussia, from Poland, Slovakia and from eastern provinces of the Reich itself.

SLICE OF SALES
TAX APPROVEDSupervisors Back Bill
To Give Counties
$15,000,000

Lansing, Jan. 25 (AP)—A proposal that local governmental units receive a flat return of state sales tax money with "no strings attached," now already before the legislature, was approved in effect today by the Michigan Association of Supervisors.

Members by a standing vote said they approved efforts of Melville B. McPherson of Lowell, chairman of the board of directors, to have the bill introduced and sponsored in the house. The suggestion did not reach the delegates in resolution form.

The proposal calls for $15,000,000 to be returned to counties on a population basis, with counties getting 50 per cent of the return and other units the rest of the money.

The association went on record opposing the recommendation of Governor Kelly's education study committee for consolidation and reorganization of school districts.

Other resolutions urged legislation giving township boards in townships of more than 5,000 population, or adjacent to cities, power to enact and enforce ordinances affecting public safety, health and welfare, and to allow metropolitan townships to have broader powers in furnishing public services.

General Who Said
"Nuts" Is Promoted

Washington, Jan. 25. (AP)—The general who told the Nazis "nuts" when they demanded that his surrounded division surrender was nominated for promotion today.

President Roosevelt recommended to the senate that Brig. Gen. Anthony C. McAuliffe be advanced to the rank of major general.

McAuliffe carved a spot for himself in history with his one-word reply to a surrender ultimatum when the 101st division was holding out at beleaguered Bastogne during the battle of the Belgian bulge. Subsequently, elements of the Third army cut a corridor through enemy lines and relieved the Bastogne garrison.

ALSACE LUNGE
MAY BE LAST
FOR GERMANSOFFENSIVE STOPPED
BY COUNTERATTACK
OF 7TH ARMY

BY AUSTIN BEALMEAR

Paris, Jan. 25. (AP)—The Germans opened up in northeastern France today with what may be their last offensive in the west, but it was checked by savage U. S. Seventh army counter-attacks after it had broken across the new American Moser River line at four points.

The attack rolled out at dawn along a 20-mile front, with three crack armored divisions pacing at least three others in an assault which nowhere gained as much as two miles. A front dispatch said hard fighting raged tonight with the Americans inflicting punishing losses.

Weather Helps Enemy

Charging out under cover of thick weather as they did in the ill-fated Ardennes campaign, the Germans were battling southward as deep as 15 miles into Alsace. On their west flank they were 12 miles from the vital Saverne Gap supplying French and American forces on the Rhine.

The Moser River, to which Lt. Gen. Alexander M. Patch's army had retired under mounting pressure from an enemy reinforced by at least one armored division hustled down from the Ardennes, was crossed at four points from two to five miles west of the American anchor at Haguenau.

German attacks flamed east of Haguenau.

To the south the Germans lashed back at the French First army which is attacking from both north and south against the Colmar pocket south of Strasbourg, and the fighting was as bitter as it was inconclusive.

British Near Roer

The British second army, seizing seven more towns as deep as ten miles into Germany, was within a mile of the Cologne plain river barrier of the Roer and three miles from the border line stronghold of Roermond in Holland.

The Germans have speculated that the next big Allied push may come from this sector, where the U. S. Ninth army on the British right flank already stands at the Roer, is rested and is in position to spring to the attack.

The punctured German bulge in the Ardennes was being flattened by the U. S. First and Third armies attacking in the cold weather of the winter—eight degrees above zero on the First army front.

The Germans were being hounded back into the Siegfried line by the Third army, which was nowhere more than six miles from the enemy's frontier on a 14-mile front in northern Luxembourg.

The U. S. Third army's private invasion of Germany in the Moselle River valley 11 miles south-east of the city of Luxembourg, met some success and the Germans were cleared from the towns of Wies, Borg and Nannig, from two to five miles inside the Reich.

This morning the enemy attacked in earnest. On the west the Germans drove the Americans back north of Reiperswiller, seven miles south of Bitche.

Five miles to the east, another attack developed in the early morning and achieved the greatest penetration at Schillersdorf, 15 miles south of the German border and a dozen miles from the Saverne Gap.

Salient Wiped Out

More menacing was fighting eight miles or so farther east, where the Germans gained their all-important crossings of the Moser River on a three-mile front between Schweighouse and Neubourg.

One belief advanced here was that the Russians were able to make spectacular advances because the Germans had committed

TROOPSHIP SUNK
WITH 765 LOSTArmed Services Casualty
List Reaches Total
Of 701,950

Washington, Jan. 25. (AP)—Along with a report of 36,456 new army casualties, Secretary Stimson revealed today the recent sinking in European waters of a ship carrying American troops, with 765 dead and missing.

No detail was given in the loss of the troopship, beyond the fact that she was sunk by enemy action while carrying more than 2,200 soldiers, of whom more than 1,400 were saved. The casualties were divided: 248 dead and 517 missing.

Heavy losses had been reported in two previous troopship sinkings, both in the Mediterranean last year. Losses in those cases totalled 1,498. Neither ship has been reported by name nor have the sinking dates been given.

More than 4,500 officers and men were aboard the transport President Coolidge when she was sunk in the South Pacific Oct. 26, 1942, but only five were lost.

The overall report of army losses, issued at the war secretary's news conference, showed 616,951 dead, wounded, captured, and missing since Pearl Harbor, up 36,456 from last week. It reflected a period of heavy fighting to stem the German breakthrough in Belgium two or three weeks ago.

The navy's newest casualty total of 84,999, up 1,635 for the week, made the overall figure for the armed services 701,950, an increase of 38,901 since last week.

France Wants Army
All Along Rhine,
DeGaulle Declares

Paris, Jan. 25. (AP)—Gen. De Gaulle told a press conference today that "France does not intend to finish this war without the assurance that the French army will be installed permanently along the length of the Rhine from one end to the other."

The head of the Provisional French government said regretfully that France had not been invited to the Roosevelt-Churchill-Stalin conference. He also explained that France does not intend to recognize the Lublin committee of Poland—at least, not immediately.

Appearing in the glacial conference room of the war ministry in a huge army overcoat and rubbing his hands frequently to keep them warm, De Gaulle declared that French troops must be placed along the Rhine after the war "not only for French security, but for the security of western Europe and even the security of the world."

Soviet Ambassador
Dies In Air Mishap
Near Mexico City

Mexico City, Jan. 25. (AP)—Constantine Oumansky, 42, Soviet ambassador to Mexico, was killed today in the crash of a Mexican air force plane 500 yards from the airport in a take-off.

His wife and seven others, three of them members of Oumansky's staff, also died in the accident.

Only two of the 11 aboard survived and both suffered injuries and burns.

The plane took off at 5:30 a. m. for Costa Rica, where Oumansky had been assigned as Russian minister to officiate in the opening of diplomatic relations between the countries.

Oumansky, at 36, became ambassador to the United States and was the youngest envoy in Washington from a major power.

DRIVE TOWARD
MANILA GAINS
RICHEST PRIZENAVAL TASK FORCE
AND B-29S BLAST
IWO JIMA

BY CLYDE BARTEL

Associated Press War Editor
Manila-Bound American Sixth army troops captured Clark Field, prize airbase of the Philippines, and neighboring Fort Stotsenburg Thursday in the drive against the Japanese on Luzon island.

After taking the airfield with its thirteen flight strips and the fort, the Yanks immediately started clearing enemy troops from nearby hills and sent patrols southward as far as Angeles, Pampanga province town only 45 airline miles north of Manila, Gen. Douglas MacArthur reported today (Friday).

Island Bombed Daily

An American naval task force teamed with army Superfortresses and Liberator bombers Tuesday to blast Iwo Jima, enemy bastion in the volcanoes 750 miles south of Tokyo, Adm. Chester W. Nimitz announced.

In this third coordinated air-sea assault on Iwo Jima in the past two months, the navy ships added their steel to 117 tons of bombs dropped by the Superforts and 70 tons contributed by the Liberators. The island, midway on the route of Marianas-based B-29s striking at Japan, has been hit almost daily by American bombers since last December 1.

While American units on the central group of MacArthur's push toward Manila were driving down the Luzon plains, other battalions on the right flank were progressing down the west coast to Santa Cruz below Dasol Bay on the road leading to Bataan peninsula.

Cavite Hammered
Yank units on the left flank meanwhile continued heavy pressure on the enemy around Rosario, key to the mountain road to Baguio, and farther south on that flank they drove into San Manuel against strong opposition.

American air units bombed the former U. S. naval base at Cavite, on Manila bay, with 95 tons of explosives setting Japanese installations afire, hammered defenses on Corregidor rock in the bay and in Subic bay up the coast, and destroyed a 10,000-ton enemy tanker near Aparri on the north coast of Luzon.

Other Yank fliers from Philippine fields continued their nightly attacks on the Japanese naval base at Takao on the southwest coast of Formosa, setting off fires and explosions.

Tokyo Claims Unverified
MacArthur's communique made no mention of additional American land and sea operations in the Philippines, as reported by Tokyo radio in the following unsupported claims:

1. United States troops made new landings on Luzon island north of the Lingayen gulf beachhead established January 9 for the Manila drive.

2. Other thousands of Yanks came ashore on the northeast coast of Mindoro island, off the south coast of Luzon, and were advancing on the town of Calapan. (The Americans already have possession of the town of Paluan on the northwest coast of Mindoro, and also on Marinduque island east of Mindoro, and likewise near the south Luzon coast.)

3. Japanese planes caught a U. S. convoy in Mindoro sea in the central Philippines, inflicting heavy damage.

4. More than 120 British carrier planes attacked the Palawan petroleum center on Cumar.

WAR PRISONER IS REPATRIATED

Sgt. Thomas H. Dumas
Returned To U. S.
From Germany

Staff Sgt. Thomas H. Dumas, 22, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Dumas of Escanaba, Route One, the first prisoner of war among Delta county servicemen to be repatriated in this war, is being returned to the United States from Germany in the near future, according to word received by his parents from the War Department.

A tail gunner on a Flying Fortress, Sgt. Dumas became a prisoner of war in Germany Feb. 24, 1944, while on his tenth combat mission over enemy territory. He has been in service since November, 1942, and went overseas in October, 1943.

Mr. and Mrs. Dumas have received the following telegram from the War Department:

"The chief of staff of the army directs me to advise you that your son, Staff Sergeant Thomas H. Dumas, has been repatriated and is being returned to the United States aboard the Gripsholm in the near future. You may telegraph and write him in care of the commanding general, Halloran General Hospital, Staten Island, N. Y., where he will be taken after arrival arrangements have been made for him to send you a personal message immediately after reaching that hospital."

The parents were advised not to attempt to go to New York to see their son there. Wounded probably when his plane was brought down in Germany, Sgt. Dumas' physical condition will necessitate continued hospitalization. An effort will be made to transfer him to a hospital nearer his home, the parents were informed.

Sgt. Dumas had written his parents that his wound was "slight." The War Department, however, informed the parents that he had suffered a fractured vertebra with paralysis.

The parents have received an Air Medal and one Oak Leaf Cluster, which indicates one additional award of the same decoration, which were awarded to their son by direction of the president. The citation accompanying the award read:

"For exceptionally meritorious achievement, while participating in ten separate bomber combat missions over enemy occupied continental Europe. The courage, coolness and skill displayed by this enlisted man upon these occasions reflects great credit upon himself and the armed forces of the United States," and was signed by Adjutant General J. A. Ullio.

New Scouting Unit In Bark River Now

At a meeting held at the Sunnyside School, south of Bark River, plans were definitely drawn up toward the organizing of a Neighborhood Patrol. A Neighborhood Patrol is a group of boys desiring to become Boy Scouts, but their number not being large enough to become a qualified Troop. Scouting is carried on in nearly the same manner as a regular Troop. This Patrol will be affiliated with Troop 446 of Bark River, under the guidance of Ray Raymond, local Scoutmaster.

Attending the organization meeting were: Mr. and Mrs. John Barr, Sr., Stanley Meyers, John Barr, Jr., Donald Bolm, Donald Larson, Walton Peterson, Kenneth Bolm, Spencer Lundquist, Charles Bugay, Ray Raymond and S. N. Bradford.

The first scheduled meeting of the new unit will be held at the Sunnyside School, February 6th, at which time the Patrol will elect its officers, select its Patrol name and colors, as well as transact other business toward further organizing.

This unit is the only Neighborhood Patrol of the Red Buck District. Ages of the boys in this Patrol range from 12 to 17. John Barr, Jr., now Junior Assistant Scoutmaster of Troop 446, will be the Patrol Leader.

Lemmer Appointed On U. Committee

John A. Lemmer, superintendent of Escanaba public schools, has been appointed by President Alexander G. Ruthven of the University of Michigan, a member of the Advisory Committee on the Regents Alumni Scholarships.

These are the scholarships offered each year by the university to graduates of all accredited Michigan high schools. The work of the advisory committee will be to help plan the scholarship program so it will be of the most value to Michigan students.

GERMANY'S WAR - HEART --- Between Rhine and Oder—Germany's defensive dikes against the tides of defeat which roll from east and west are expected to be along the lines of the Rhine River on the west, the Oder on the east. Between them lies the heart of German war production. In the Rhineland are the great mines, steel works and factories of the Saar and Ruhr valleys. In Silesia, now under the shadow of the Hammer and Sickle, lies the only big industrial region left to Hitler not attacked or threatened by the Western Allies. To Silesia were transferred many war industries bombed out of the Ruhr and Saar. (NEA Photo.)

Germany's V-2 Bomb Follows U. S. Design

Examination of a German rocket bomb, V-2, which fell into the hands of the Allies in Belgium, disclosed that this supposedly mysterious vengeance weapon, which is believed to have been fired more than 60 miles above the earth to fall in England, is similar to rockets developed in the United States before the attack on Pearl Harbor. So closely do the mechanical features of V-2 parallel the American projectile that some physicists think the Germans may have actually copied most of the design.

The complicated research and development that resulted in the American-type rocket carried on by Dr. Robert H. Goddard, one of America's outstanding rocket experts, says a bulletin from the National Geographic Society. In more than 30 years devoted to rocket experimentation Dr. Goddard worked under the auspices of Clark University, Smithsonian Institution, and the Daniel and Florence Guggenheim Foundation.

Experiments started in 1910. When Dr. Goddard started his experiments about 1910 rockets showed little progress beyond the simple paper and wood device, crammed with gunpowder, which was shot a hundred or so feet into the air during Fourth of July celebrations, or its big brothers, the rockets used at sea for distress signals. Discarding gunpowder as the driving force, Dr. Goddard adopted liquid fuels, selecting liquid oxygen and gasoline. He designed a scientifically-shaped combustion chamber which "squeezed" the escaping gases and extracted from them greatly increased pushing power. He introduced jet-driven centrifugal pumps to feed the fuels under great pressure; and evolved a pilot gyro, connected with vanes near the tail of the rocket, which stabilized and controlled its flight.

Most of these features were patented by Dr. Goddard between 1914 and 1932. The captured V-2 contained all of the elements of Dr. Goddard's rocket, and even their arrangement inside the shell was the same. The few minor differences included the use of alcohol in place of gasoline and a slightly different method of cooling the walls of the combustion chamber. The American rocket did not have an explosive head, but patent drawings by Dr. Goddard as early as 1914 indicated the possibility of using the projectiles to carry explosive charges.

The "rocket action" which Dr.

Goddard built up from a puny strength to one of giant might is a matter of simple recoil. It is the same force which causes a shotgun to kick backward against the shoulder of a hunter at the same time that the exploding cartridge sends its pellets forward from the smooth gun barrel. In this case the main force is forward and the recoil is an unwanted by-product.

Recoil Made More Powerful
Dr. Goddard's inventions succeeded in reversing this situation and in making the recoil more and more efficient and powerful. One of the fundamental steps was the designing of the combustion space with a relatively large chamber and a constricted throat and a flaring mouth through which the gases must escape. This in itself stepped up the power of the thrust. It was increased further by the use of liquid fuels which expand tremendously in passing from the liquid to the gaseous form. The pressure in the chamber, and therefore the power contributed by the rushing gases, was still further heightened by the action of the fuel pumps.

These developments brought astounding results in total power output. The largest American made rocket model following this design was only 21 feet long and 18 inches in greatest diameter, charged with approximately 250 pounds of fuel; yet it is estimated that its flaming, outgassing gases delivered a horsepower equal to that of one of the ponderous steam locomotives that will pull 50 or more loaded freight cars on American railroads. The German V-2 rocket, which is in effect an expansion of the American model, weighs approximately 19 tons, nine of the weight being fuel. It therefore develops a tremendously greater power which is estimated to carry it 63 miles above the earth's surface before it falls toward its target.

Tests in New Mexico
Most of Dr. Goddard's experiments between 1930 and 1941 were carried on near Roswell, New Mexico. In the open country several miles from his workshop he erected a launching tower. Many of the laborious tests of chambers, pumps, and stabilizing devices were run on anchored models, but flights also were made, usually to a height of several thousand feet. The mechanisms were saved from damage and returned to earth by the opening of automatic parachutes.

Because the United States, unlike Germany, had no enemy whose territory could be reached by short or medium-range rocket bombs, the army and navy requested in 1941 that Dr. Goddard suspend his rocket experiments and devote all his time to problems concerned with jet-propelled airplanes.

Along with his experiments on the simpler type of rocket, Dr. Goddard has given much thought and mathematical analysis to the type which has appealed strongly to the imagination of the average American—the "step" rocket which may be capable of traveling thousands of miles across oceans or upward even beyond the earth's atmosphere. It is this type of rocket, which according to rumors, German scientists threaten to fire from Europe to America. In effect, the step rocket is a series of rockets "nested" together. The heaviest and most powerful of the units would be fired first to get the entire train of rockets under way. After the fuel of the first rocket was exhausted, it would drop away, first igniting the second rocket which would push the group on, taking full advantage of the momentum already attained. This procedure would continue with the smallest rocket coming into operation only after it had been driven thousands of miles from the starting point.

World War 1 Widows' Pension Forms Received

Forms have been received at the Escanaba office of the Office of Veterans Affairs for application to the government by needy widows and orphans of veterans of World War I for pension payments as provided for by congress in a bill passed last December, it was announced yesterday by Gerald Cleary, service officer for the Cleveland Post of the American Legion. The bill had been sponsored and urged by the Legion for many years.

Cleary said there are about 125 widows in Delta county who are eligible to receive monthly pension payments under terms of the bill. The Office of Veterans Affairs is located in the Escanaba National Bank building and is open from 9 to 12 and from 1:30 to 5 o'clock. Widows seeking the pension were asked by Cleary to bring their husband's service discharge papers with them.

The bill provides government financial assistance ranging from $35 to $75 a month to widows and orphans of all World War I veterans, regardless of the cause of death, who may be in need. The amount payable depends upon the number of dependents. An American Legion survey in November showed thousands of cases of destitution among war widows and orphans. The Veterans Administration estimated that about 162,000 families would be eligible for the benefits under the new law. On that basis the first year's cost was placed at $37,496,500.

As enacted, the bill provides the following schedule of monthly payments for needy widows and orphans of veterans deceased from non-service-connected causes:

Widow only ..... $35.00
Widow with one child ..... 45.00
Each additional child ..... 5.00

One child, no widow ..... 18.00
Two children ..... 27.00
Three children ..... 36.00
Each additional child ..... 4.00
Maximum per month ..... 74.00
The bill bars benefits to widows having an income of $1,000 or more a year if they have no dependents, or $2,500 if they have dependents.

The measure also provides that a widow must show she was married to the veteran prior to the effective date of the act, or had lived with him in valid marriage for 10 successive years. However, ineligibility of a widow would not bar dependent children from drawing benefits.

St. Nicholas

St. Nicholas—Pvt. Phil Lippens has arrived safely in Italy, according to word received by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Adolph Lippens.

Robert Miron, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Miron, who enlisted in the army, was among the group who went to Milwaukee Tuesday for physical examinations.

The infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Miron, was christened Sunday at St. Joseph's Catholic church. Miss Louise Miron, aunt of the child, was sponsor. The baby was given the name Grace Cecilia Agnes. The infant, who is now two months old, is at St. Francis hospital suffering with whooping cough.

Another Misfit

SO MADAM PERKINS, for 12 long years a recognized misfit and center of repeated violent storms of protest from both union labor and the public, is to remain in President Roosevelt's cabinet, as secretary of the department of labor—merely because two factions of labor in the nation are unable to agree on her successor.

President Roosevelt astounded his party and the nation when he named Frances Perkins to the important post of secretary of labor, in his cabinet, 12 years ago—the first woman ever to serve in a presidential cabinet in this nation. From the outset Madam Perkins displayed no aptitude for her job and in the succeeding years she has been pushed farther and farther into the background of cabinet activities. It required a war to force President Roosevelt to transfer much of the department of labor's duties to a war labor board, with the result that Mrs. Perkins has clung to her post, as a mere figurehead.

During the recent presidential campaign, labor was freely promised that in return for fourth term support, union labor would be granted the privilege of naming the next secretary of labor. With a violent battle for leadership being constantly waged by officers of the American Federation of Labor and the CIO, the promise of President Roosevelt became an empty one when the A. F. of L. and the CIO failed to agree upon a successor for Madam Perkins.

Thus on the heels of the presidential announcement of the appointment of former Vice President Henry A. Wallace, as secretary of commerce, to pay a political debt, in spite of his lack of fitness for the job, President Roosevelt must now face the further blame for naming a secretary of labor whom nobody wants.

The Polish Question

HERE in America it is somewhat difficult for us to get a true picture of the internal political strife that is going on in Poland and other countries liberated from the Nazi yoke.

What appears to complicate the picture is that some of the people, in many instances the majority, in these countries desire liberation as well from the kind of government they had in the prewar years. This is true in the case of Yugoslavia and Greece, which have had monarchical rule. Government in Poland also has not been so democratic in the past as it has appeared to be on the surface.

Oscar Lange, professor of the University of Chicago, in a recent statement given wide circulation, asserts that Poland's future welfare lies with adherence to the provisional government in Lublin rather than with the Polish government-in-exile in London. Professor Lange contends that the Lublin government and its predecessor, the Polish Committee of National Liberation, prepared for the liberation of Poland, and organized the Polish army to fight on the side of the Russian army. The government-in-exile, he adds, recklessly squandered its opportunities by continuing to speculate on the exhaustion of the Soviet Union, by trying to promote a rift between the Allies, and by refusing the outstretched hand of the Polish Committee of National Liberation.

According to Lange, the Lublin government has pledged to hold a general election to a constituent assembly on the basis of the democratic Polish constitution of 1921. The government-in-exile's insistence on the Fascist constitution of 1939 shows that it wants to impose itself on the people of Poland without submitting to their approval.

Mail Valentines Early

WE'VE noticed that the war department has again reminded those concerned to mail their overseas Valentines as soon as possible. Doubtless to the militaristic Prussian forebears of our present enemy in Europe this matter of taking a moment or two to think about soldiers' mail from their wives and sweethearts would have seemed "decadent" and far removed from the business of war.

But to us this gesture demonstrates anew the essential humanity of our military leaders. When in the midst of portentous events those responsible for our soldiers' and sailors' welfare can project themselves into the hearts of their men, and see the light that bursts happily within those hearts when Valentines bring their loving messages from the girl at home, then we ourselves learn again just what small but significant things reflect the true character of an army. Overseas Valentines are not new in this war, nor even in the last one. Overseas Valentines are not new in this war, nor even in the last one. They date back to the Napoleonic wars—perhaps even earlier. So that there: what encourages us is the official understanding that such an old and simple tradition may possess a world of meaning for men far away from their homes.

We learn also that this year's Valentines are more old-fashioned and sincerely sentimental than ever, and that's a good sign too. The soldier seems to live in a world that shifts its values hourly—the old values will help convince him that he's not adrift in it. Mail those Valentines early!

Releasing Copper Wire

SINCE electric lighting and power were so important to farm production in the Upper Peninsula and other rural regions last year, the government intends to make it available to many more farms this year, according to information from Washington.

Since allocation of copper wire for extension of power lines is based on the need expressed by county agricultural conservation committees, it is up to the farmer to let the committee know that he needs an extension and to the committee to report the need as soon as possible.

Extensions are authorized to farms less than 5,000 feet from a highline, and the principal requirement is one animal unit of production per 100 feet of proposed line. Both light and power will be more necessary than ever in 1945 if farm production is to be maintained. Many thousands of young farm workers will be drafted, and older folks will have to work early and late to compensate for this loss. Furthermore, increased war demands are cutting into the farm machinery program.

Last year, the Rural Electrification Administration approved 67,074 applications for electric line extensions, more than the entire number of new customers added to REA systems in 1943.

THE CHAMPION GARDENER

(Marinette Eagle-Star)

No fishing or golfing enthusiast in these parts should resort to the alibi that the season is too short when he wants to escape the chores of gardening, for his alibi won't hold water, so to speak. Not when the champion gardener of the United States lives only about 70 miles northwest of Marinette. Nor can it be said—resorting to another alibi—that gardening in this country doesn't pay.

Mrs. Catherine Benzio, Italian-born matron of Norway, Mich., has been proclaimed all-American gardener and winner of the nation-wide Green Thumb Victory Garden contest. What this 69-year old woman raised on land that is anything but the best would put the average gardener to shame.

Her record book shows that she planted 37 kinds of vegetables and did all the planting, weeding and harvesting without assistance. She canned 371 quarts of vegetables, 105 quarts of fruit, stored 30 bushels of vegetables and dried 11½ bushels of vegetables. She supplied her own family with vegetables and either sold or gave away surplus products and also raised mangels for her cow and sunflower seed for her poultry.

That is an amazing record and it is not surprising she was picked as the best amateur gardener in the country as a result. The surprising fact, however, is that her record was established under anything but the most favorable conditions. We wonder what she would have done under the most favorable soil and climatic conditions.

A pleasant smile goes a long way—but it always comes back!

It's just a question of time until there'll be a total eclipse of the Rising Sun.

There are no ifs and ands about the cigar shortage—and very few butts.

Grace Allen Says.

Well, Mr. Roosevelt and those congressmen are at it again. They object to him making Henry Wallace Secretary of Commerce to replace Jesse Jones because Wallace hasn't had enough experience spending money. Goodness, if they want someone to spend money shrewdly, give the job to a woman.

A woman wouldn't rush out and buy a TVA project for two hundred million dollars. She'd wait till they had a January clearance sale on dams and pick it up for a hundred and ninety-nine million, nine hundred and ninety-nine thousand.

Of course, there's a little danger. You know how women are when they go shopping. She may go out one day to buy a little power utility and come home with the petroleum rights to about thirty different nations, because they looked so cute she just couldn't resist them. Put a woman in that job and well! soon have a few possessions that will make the Louisiana purchase look like it was picked up in Macy's basement.

Take My Word For it . . . Frank Colby

I'M FLABBERGASTED!

Not long ago I commented on the queer notion that only persons and live animals can "lie" or "sit," and that inanimate objects "lay" or "set." I pointed out the absurdity of such a rule, and wondered if some recently published textbook had gone off the deep end by teaching it.

There apparently is something wrong somewhere, for many of my readers have since told me that, grammatically, only live persons and animals can lie or sit. A typical letter comes from R. E. S., of Los Angeles (California '43): "The rule which has been quoted to me by English teach-

World Events Analyzed

BY MARQUIS CHILDS

London—One great event overshadows everything that has happened in recent weeks. The great successes of the Russian offensive in the east make everything else in both the political and military field seem small.

Particularly, it overshadows the meeting of the Big Three which Churchill and Eden will soon attend. Back of Stalin, when the three heads of State sit down around the conference table, will be greater bargaining power than ever before. "Uncle Joe," as he is familiarly known here, a supreme realist, will be fully aware of that.

Yet the underlying truth is that the British and Americans, on the one hand, and the Russians, on the other, seem no closer to real understanding than on that historic day in June 1941 when they first became allies. If anything, the relationship is more distant than it was in the first flush of the alliance forced by necessity.

—REFUSE TO COOPERATE—

Take as an example the recent effort to reach an agreement on the joint organization of transportation inside chaotic Europe. For many weeks negotiators for the three countries, together with representatives of other European powers—including, for a time, the Polish government-in-exile—tried to find some basis of understanding.

Then, abruptly, the Russians announced they would not sit at the same conference table with the London Poles. This marked the beginning of complications that finally all but halted the conference.

The British foreign office came forward with the proposal that transportation be organized within the Anglo-American sphere of military control. This, however, was most likely to arouse Russian suspicions, as was promptly pointed out by the negotiators. For one thing, communication with the Russians seems so very difficult. In a conference such as that on transportation, long delays were encountered in getting replies back from Moscow.

This, of course, is one of the fundamental obstacles to understanding. It is no secret here that the Russians are deeply suspicious of Anglo-American intentions with respect to Poland, and they are determined that their plan shall prevail.

In the face of this adamant attitude, there is apparently nothing the British and Americans can do but eventually to recognize the Lublin committee as the government of Poland. In other words, the unhappy hope of the present period is that the London Poles will drop out of sight as quickly as possible and be forgotten.

They show no signs of helping that process along. Prime Minister Arciszewski's moving appeal to the Soviets for "lasting and honest cooperation" made a deep impression here, where it was carried in full in most newspapers. He seemed to have elementary justice on his side.

—SCANTY NEWS FROM RUSSIA—

Again, perhaps, it comes down to this matter of communications. The Polish government-in-exile has been responsible in the past for many acts hostile to the Soviet Union. If these had been publicized, it might have put the Russian position in a different light.

But little except formal communiques come out of the Soviet Union. American and British correspondents are confined almost entirely to Moscow and to the rewriting of news in official newspapers.

Compared with the mysteries and complexities of dealings with Russia, the recent British-American controversies seem unimportant. After all, the two English-speaking countries have cooperated in almost every possible way in the war. We have exchanged weapons and knowledge and we have fought side by side.

Britain and America are rather like a husband and wife who quarrel on the morning when the coffee is bad and the baby is sick. Stalin is the rich and difficult uncle with whom they want to stand well, but they don't know quite how to go about winning his friendship. He is suspicious; they are timid and hesitant.

Shrewd observers on both sides of the Atlantic have felt that Uncle Joe would be easier to deal with if only Britain and America could clearly formulate both their intentions. Timidity and hesitation would seem to be the qualities most calculated to enhance Russian suspicions. In any event, the test is soon to come when Stalin, with his armies advancing into Germany, sits down with Churchill and Roosevelt.

ers in high school and college is that inanimate objects cannot "lie" or "sit." Thus, your "correct" sentence, "The book is sitting on the table," is incorrect, as the book has no mechanism to sit."

To say that a book cannot sit, because it has no knees and hips to bend, is as ridiculous as saying that there is no such thing as standing water, since water has no feet, that a clock cannot run down since it has "no mechanism (feet and legs) for running, or that time has no wings for flying.

I hope that some member of the English Department at the University of California will write to assure me that no such nonsense is being taught there.

Inanimate objects have been sitting and lying since the very beginning of English: "O little town of Bethlehem! How still we see thee lie!"—Philip Brooks.

"It lies around us like a cloud, a world we do not see."—Harriet Beecher Stowe.

"The Beauty which old Greece or Rome sung, painted, wrought, lies close at home."—Whitman.

"Sits the wind in that corner?"—Shakespeare.

"A coat sits well or ill."—Merriam Webster's.

MORE OF MERRIWELL—Sometime back, following the death of Harvan Barr (Gil) Patten, author of the Frank and Dick Merriwell books of a generation ago, this column commented on Patten's work and contrasted it with the juvenile literature of today. Although news reports of Patten's death did not say so, Harvan Barr had changed his first name to Gilbert. Or perhaps the news report was wrong, and his name was Gilbert. This explanation is made so there will be no confusion in reading the following letter from George T. Springer of Minneapolis.

Dunathan

will be no confusion in reading the following letter from George T. Springer of Minneapolis.

Delta county folks know Springer because of his birth and residence for many years in Gladstone. More particularly in recent years he will be remembered as the "spark plug" of the Gladstone birling contests which in pre-war years attracted nationwide attention. Springer writes:

"Your piece in the Feb. 20 issue of the Press relative to the creator of the Frank and Dick Merriwell stories, Gil Patten, was read by me with a great deal of interest as I was an avid reader of the Top Weekly in my youth.

"In 1941 there was published 'Mr. Frank Merriwell' which purported to be Merriwell of the present day and Patten described him battling today's problems with the same zest that he displayed in his younger days.

"Recalling that Frank Merriwell spent some time in the state of Maine during vacations from college caused me to wonder if Patten had had his hero in a birling contest, and with the idea of working it into some publicity for the 1941 Roleo at Gladstone I wrote Patten and received the following reply:

Frank Merriwell's Rancho Yucaipa, Calif.
May 17, 1941.

Dear Mr. Springer: Thank you sincerely for your kind words about "Mr. Frank Merriwell."

To the best of my recollection I never used a birling contest in the Merriwell stories. Although I was born in Maine and my father was, in his younger days, a river driver on the Penobscot, my knowledge by personal contact with lumbermen was practically nothing at the time I was writing the original Merriwells. I am selfishly sorry that I can't refer you to such a contest in the stories, as the use you would make of it might give my Alliance novel some publicity, and it needs all it can get in order to reach the attention of former readers.

Word-of-mouth advertising is a tremendous help also.

Alliance contemplates publishing my autobiography. I expect to make arrangements with them for the same on returning to New York later this month. With kind regards.

Sincerely yours,
Gilbert Patten.

"On August 6, 1942, (Springer's letter continues) Stewart H. Holbrook sent me a program from the Spokane Chamber of Commerce at which he and Gil Patten appeared as speakers, at which time Holbrook wrote me as follows:

I thought you would like to see the enclosed. When I went to Spokane Monday night I had no idea I was to meet my favorite juvenile author, but lo and behold here was Burt L. Standish himself. (Patten wrote under the name Burt L. Standish.) I took part of my time, being the lead speaker, to pay tribute to the old man. Then I had him on my radio program, and when the newspaper boys came to take my picture, I insisted Gil should be in it. And he was.

The group included Jack Floyd, district Scout commissioner; W. D. McCellan, assistant district commissioner; Dale Vinette, junior deputy commissioner in Sea Scouting; and Tom Seymour, junior deputy commissioner. The latter two are both Eagle Scouts.

Manistiquette—Mrs. Robert Hewitt was the guest of honor at a delightful post-nuptial party given by Mrs. William Nelson at her home on the Hiawatha road, Thursday evening. Guests at the party included Mrs. Orville Smith, Mrs. Barney Johnson, Mrs. Russell Fagan, Mrs. John Girvin, Jr., and the Misses Mary and Ellen Stephens, Eleanor Crawford, Angle Barkovich, Frances Jahn and Mrs. Robert Hewitt.

20 Years Ago—1925

An overcast sky which completely hid the sun from view, prevented scientists gathered here to observe the eclipse from procuring any data or material of astronomical or scientific value, according to John Novack, local astronomer whose observatory was the center of activities along that line.

Radio tests, conducted by station WJAX—the Zenith 100-watt portable broadcaster—on the other hand, were extremely successful. Some of the tests brought results that were almost uncanny and which can be explained by no generally accepted theory, according to E. F. McDonald, president of the National Association of Radio Broadcasting, who on Friday made the trip to this city from Chicago by airplane, to have a hand in the experiments.

25 Years Ago—1920

New York, Jan. 24.—The army transport Martha Washington arrived today from Antwerp with 88 officers and 220 troops—the next to the last contingent of the American Expeditionary Forces to leave France.

The last of the Yanks to sail arrived earlier in the day in the Northern Pacific, a faster transport. The Martha Washington, picked up the Transport Powhatan's radio call for help and went to her aid.

row to 6 feet, with a wonderful shock of pure white hair. His Maine accent has not been impaired in the least by 50 years among city slickers. I asked him about his getting a letter about Frank M. and log birling. He recalled your letter and his reply.

We talked of changing styles in juvenile literature. "What chance," he said, "has the double-shoot of Frank Merriwell against a space gun?" I thought that a very good comment.

(So ends a portion of Holbrook's letter to Springer. Holbrook is nationally known as the author of "Holy Old Mackinaw," "Iron Brew," "Burning an Empire" and other works. Springer continues):

"The passing of Gil Patten will bring to the minds of many an American, who has grown expansive about the midriff, the exploits of the one and only Frank Merriwell and his brother, Dick."

DEAR MR. SPRINGER:

Thank you for your letter confirming a conclusion that with the death of Patten there also died a great influence for the betterment of juvenile literature. For more than 17 years Patten presented through his Merriwell books a merely fictional character whose deeds undoubtedly affected the thoughts and actions of millions of American boys.

As Holbrook has pointed out in his letter to you, in quoting Patten's comment on the "space gun" technique of modern juvenile fiction, there is little hope for the return of flesh and blood heroes until the present trend toward unrealities spends itself. The so-called "funny books" are today's most-read fictional works for youth. In the vast majority they are lurid and cheap, or innocuous and silly.

The Lyons Den

By Leonard Lyons

NEW YORK—Supreme Court Justice William O. Douglas has a summer home in LeGrande, Oregon. There Roy Schaeffer works as his guide and cook. Schaeffer knows the Northwest well, the best fishing places and the forests where the hunting is good. He never has seen a map of America, for he never cared about any regions except America's Northwest. . . . Some days ago, however, he decided to visit his son at camp in Yuma. By pack-mule he went to the nearest railroad station and bought a ticket. He changed trains three times, saw his son at Arizona, and decided that he had traveled so far that he must be somewhere near the capital of the United States, where Justice Douglas sits as a member of the Supreme Court.

SCHAEFFER BOUGHT a ticket to Washington and rode the coaches day and night. He tired in Omaha, went to a hotel for 36 hours' sleep, and then continued his journey. He arrived in Washington Saturday morning wearing his only suit of clothes and asked a cab driver: "Where can I find my friend, Bill Douglas?" The driver phoned the Supreme Court. Justice Douglas instructed him how to reach his home in Silver Springs and Roy Schaeffer came a-visitin' in his cowboy suit, boots, plaid shirt and ten-gallon hat. He was given the guest room at the home of his Oregon friend, Bill Douglas.

JUSTICE DOUGLAS was on his way to the White House for the swearing-in of the President. "How'd you like to visit the White House?" he asked Schaeffer, who admitted as how he'd like to. Roy Schaeffer attended the inaugural as well as the tea given by Douglas at the Supreme Court. "Roy," Douglas then told him, "tonight's the dinner of the Thousand Club." "What's that?" the Oregon guide asked. "You know, the Thousand Dollars," said Douglas. "I belong there," said Roy Schaeffer, who occupied the most prominent table at the dinner. "Cause that's exactly how much I made last year."

JAMES ADAMS, president of Standard Brands, will become vice-chairman of its board of directors. . . . Harpo Marx has had to wear his pink wig so often during his current USO tour that he dyed his own hair pink. Harpo, incidentally, now has four adopted children, and will adopt two more. . . . A noted American writer, who recently appeared in town wearing a war correspondent's uniform, has been committed to Bellevue Hospital. . . . Paul Porter, chairman of the Federal Communications Commission, will make the commencement address at Kentucky Wesleyan College. This is the college from which Porter was fired when he was 16.

FANNY HURST once gave a dinner party to which a lawyer brought Lord and Lady Duveen. The lawyer started to pat Miss Hurst's dog, despite the novelist's warning that it was a one-man dog. The dog bit his hand, clean through to the bone. Miss Hurst said: "I'm going upstairs to get some iodine and bandages. I'll be right back." She rushed upstairs, got the iodine and bandages, and then noticed Lady Duveen's new sable coat lying on the bed. Miss Hurst couldn't resist the opportunity. She put down the iodine and bandages, closed the door, and tried on the priceless sable coat.

JUDGE FRED VINSON, the Economic Stabilizer, was a baseball star at Center College. There he was accused of having played professional ball, and a hearing was ordered by the college's executive committee. . . . Vinson, as a matter of fact, had played pro ball in and around his home town in Kentucky. The accusers charged that he had played pro ball in Waco, Texas. They had confused him with another ballplayer named Vinson.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

BY DREW PEARSON

(Lt. Col. R. S. Allen now on active service) Washington — When General Marshall delivered his private report on the war to President Roosevelt and congressional leaders last week, he disclosed the Belgian winter forced thousands of American soldiers into hospitals—not because of wounds but from pneumonia, flu, and trench foot.

These ailments, resulting from over-exposure and feet in mud and water for days at a time, perhaps have taken more men out of the front line than bullets. The situation also has resulted in complaints that the army has failed to supply adequate clothing.

Actually, records of the quartermaster corps indicate that plenty of clothing has been sent to France. However, many soldiers discard surplus clothing during battle only to regret it later. Also, men in advance positions sometimes get cut off and left in rain and snowstorms where they suffer severely no matter how much clothing they have on.

It is admitted the standard government issue shoe probably is not adequate for the incessant, never-ending mud of the western front, and can't compare with the water-proof, felt-lined, heavy leather boot the Russians have developed for winter fighting. These warm boots have been one reason why the Russian army always have been able to out-walk, out-travel, and out-fight any enemy in the winter-time.

Suggestion to lend-lease officials: Why not get a million Russian boots on reverse lend-lease from the Soviet government in exchange for airplanes, tanks, and guns we have been sending them?

—ANOTHER STATLER DINNER—

Most famous dinner of the election campaign was that given by the Teamsters Union at the Statler hotel in honor of the President, following which two naval officers in the Statler lobby engaged in a brawl with dinner guests who wore Roosevelt buttons.

It didn't make the same headlines, but another dinner took place in the Statler recently also attended by President Roosevelt, this one given by the radio broadcasters. This time Jack Benny, not Dan Tobin, was toastmaster. This time army and navy officers were present, not in the hotel lobby but at the dinner table.

They were General Marshall, General Arnold, and Admiral King, and as they were introduced to the guests, President Roosevelt suddenly asked for the microphone and announced to the entire banquet hall:

"The guests may feel quite secure as they leave the hotel tonight. Your hosts have shown good judgment in choosing their military guests."

—F. D. R.'S ELEPHANT MEMORY—

Though the President made his obligation to Henry Wallace, the official pretext for requesting Jesse Jones' resignation, the inside fact is that Jones was out anyway.

To close friends, F. D. R. has never made any secret of this ever since the Texas Democratic convention where Jesse Jones' nephew plotted to steal the vote in the electoral college. Even in his conversations with Jesse — such few as there were — the President made no effort to conceal his feelings. Jesse saw the handwriting on the wall, and knew his political goose was cooked. At the last cabinet meeting Friday, even before he got F. D. R.'s letter, Jesse shook hands with everyone, even said good-bye to the White House secretariat.

One of the interesting little details of the Texas situation which leaked back to the President, was a plan to put Jesse's nephew, George Butler, in the Austin state house as Governor of Texas. Lt. Gov. John Lee Smith was to give way to the ticket to Butler, and then Gov. Coke Stevenson was to resign, permitting Butler to become governor.

Lt. Gov. Smith actually sent a telegram of resignation to the Dallas Democratic convention. By that time, however, the Jones-Butler move had been defeated and Smith's telegram, addressed to oil lobbyist Wallace Hawkins, was never made known to the convention.

F. D. R. may have a line-up of Democratic donkeys on his desk, but he has an elephant's memory. As early as last summer he determined that Jesse Jones would never sit in his 4th term cabinet. When Wallace asked for the commerce department, he knew the job was open.

—WALLACE BONES UP—

Henry Wallace never breathed a word of it, but he knew weeks ago he was to become Secretary of Commerce.

The tip-off to outsiders came several weeks ago when a messenger entered the office of Wallace's portly assistant, Harold Young, loaded with copies of the commerce department's annual reports.

Young hastily stuffed the commerce reports into a corner, and brought them out only when no one was round.

The quicker you realize what living is worth in this country, the less you'll worry about the cost of it.

Speaker Urges
Abolishment of Jap Religion

Jack Morrow, veteran newspaper man, who spent 17 years in the Orient, gave an interesting and enlightening lecture on the subject, "Inside Japan," at the regular meeting of the Escanaba Woman's club Wednesday, at the Sherman hotel.

Mr. Morrow, in his introduction, explained that there are two schools of thought, that of diplomats and missionaries, who insist that the Japanese are an orderly people who in time will turn out their military leaders, accept civilian leaders and agree to a negotiated peace; and the other, business leaders and men of that type, who say that the only way to handle Japan is to surround her with a ring of battleships and prevent the outside world from reaching her, and in time she will revert to her earlier civilization.

The lecturer stated that he does not agree with either of these, that the common people of Japan are no different than we in hopes and aspirations, with the difference that in the United States we have a chance to realize them, but in Japan they have not.

"War must be brought home to the common people of Japan," he declared. "These people have been taught in every school and classroom that war has never been brought home to the Japanese in Japan, and why not? Because Japan is the house where God lives and God protects his own from their enemies. Therefore Japan cannot be invaded as long as God and the Japanese emperor occupy their land! This is Shintoism, the national religion of the Japanese. Beginning in the second grade the children study the Book of Ethics. In this they learn that the Sun Goddess sent her only son to rule

Worry Clinic

With Case Records Of
A Psychologist

BY DR. GEORGE W. CRANE

CASE E-204: Judy, aged 9 3/4 years, is our only daughter.

A few days ago she came home and told her mother she had heard a couple of jokes.

But she apparently sensed that they were somewhat risqué, for she waited till her mother was alone with her in the bedroom before she repeated her stories.

After Judy had finished one story, her mother asked where she had heard it.

"Oh, Peggy told me," she replied. "She heard her mother tell it at a party one night."

"Well, you mustn't repeat such stories," Mrs. Crane admonished Judy. "They aren't nice stories."

"Besides, if you tell such things, when you grow up the boys will not like you."

"So I better just let them go in one ear and out the other, huh?" Judy nodded understandingly.

"That's right," said her mother.

Diagnosis
I have treated this recent episode from our house to show you how sexual stories and salaciousness permeate even the better schools.

Please notice, too, that children not yet 10 years of age are passing such information around. You prudish old folks who think I am rushing things by urging sane, scientific sex education for school pupils, apparently are out of contact with modern America, and don't realize what is going on today.

You can't protect your child entirely from such lewd stories, for too many parents are just like Peggy's mother.

They tell vulgar stories at parties, where they think their youngsters can't understand.

Or they are liquored up to the point where they forget that "little pitchers have big ears," as the old saying goes.

How Children Are Polluted
I have heard other children on numerous occasions recount such vulgar tales, but when I tactfully questioned the story teller, I found that he or she didn't fully comprehend the full significance of what was being told.

The children had heard their parents laugh loudly, however, so they memorized the same story and thought it must be funny, even though they missed the suggestiveness of the tale.

But not all children miss the point. Besides, they get the unfortunate idea that such vulgarity must be humorous. Thus, they begin to pay more and more attention to such so-called jokes.

Peggy's mother would probably be horrified if she knew that her daughter is passing such vulgarity around the classrooms and citing her mother as the authority for the stories.

But Peggy's mother should be horrified. She is probably the type of prudish woman who would yell to high heaven at my column when I deal constructively with sex problems.

She would very likely try to put pressure on an editor to drop this column, saying I am polluting the morals of youth, yet she would glibly tell vulgar stories in the hearing of her children. I've encountered such hypocrites plenty of times since I started writing this educational column.

Bridge League
To Meet at Elks
Club Each Week

By L. W. Olson

Starting this Saturday night, January 27, the Delta Bridge League will meet each Saturday night at 8 in the lodge rooms (upstairs) of the Elks club rooms. This will be a permanent change and will continue throughout the balance of this playing year. The club urges all of its members to be on hand for the opening night of play in our new quarters to help get the club off to a good start.

One of the directors of the club will be stationed at the entrance to direct the members to the lodge rooms. I am sure that we will find these quarters quieter and well suited to our needs.

Last week we had a very fine turnout and play was spirited and fast. Twenty-eight boards were played and everyone enjoyed the evening very much.

Pairs scoring over 50 per cent were as follows:

Mrs. E. A. Christie and Mrs. Rose Louis, 64.58.

Mrs. J. Card and G. E. Dehlin, 60.71.

Mr. and Mrs. B. M. Howe 58.03.

E. J. Kremer and J. Ferguson, 57.93.

Mrs. R. L. Parsons and Mrs. L. P. Treiber, 54.76.

K. Treiber and C. W. Murdock, 54.16.

Mr. and Mrs. H. Needham 52.25.

Mr. and Mrs. R. Smith 51.14.

Mrs. G. Mashek and Miss D. Mashek 50.00.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Richards, 50.00.

Word has been received by Mrs. Ralph Scheffler, 1813 Ludington street, that her husband, T. J. Scheffler, has arrived safely on the island of Oahu, part of the Hawaiian group. Sgt. Scheffler has been in the service since May, 1943, and is with the ordnance department.

G-I VETERANS SERVICE
What is your problem? We will answer questions free for members of the Armed Forces and Veterans on benefits pertaining to the GI Bill and all other legislation. Write your question clearly, sign name and address, and (IMPORTANT) MAIL THIS COUPON and a 3-cent stamp to the Veterans Editor, Escanaba Daily Press Service Bureau, 1217 13th St., N. W., Washington 5, D. C., for a personal reply. Don't telephone; write as directed.

Q. Is a man who holds a Blue Discharge entitled to mustering-out pay?

A. To be eligible for mustering-out pay, a veteran must have been discharged under honorable conditions. The Blue Discharge is neither honorable nor dishonorable, and its holders would therefore be ineligible for mustering-out pay. However, a veteran holding a Blue discharge is eligible for all benefits under the GI bill.

Q. What is the pay of a private first class now serving overseas in Australia?

A. His base pay is $54 per month, with 20 per cent additional for overseas service, or a total of $64.80 per month. After three years service, he would receive an additional five per cent of his base pay.

Q. A close friend has been sent overseas and I want to get his address. What do you suggest?

A. The best way would be to get it from either a member of his family or a mutual friend.

TWIN SISTERS WING TO BRIGHT FLYING FUTURE

BY DAVE TAYLOR

NEA Staff Correspondent

Rome, Ga.—When flyers come home from the wars, they'll probably be in for a surprise when the girls start spouting learnedly about feathering props, cross-wind landings, flaps and retractable landing gears. All over the country girls are learning to fly and are studying the principles of aeronautics. They're keeping up with the men who'll be coming back with thrilling stories of flight experiences, and the girls expect to get in on the second story, if not the ground floor, of the aviation industry. Here, for instance, is the story of twin sisters who are preparing for an aeronautical career.

Frances and Elizabeth Woods, 18 of Rome, Ga., are licensed private pilots. They own a two-seater plane and are training for licenses as commercial instructors.

The two have been in the air since high school days when a pilot friend sold them on flying with his stories about the fun and romance in aviation. Selling their parents the idea of their taking up the sport was a bit tougher, but their dad thought the idea "super" to quote the girls, and with him on their side they convinced their mother.

After both had made solo flights, the Woods surprised them with a high school graduation gift of a bright red Aeronca Chief dual-controlled two-passenger monoplane.

Last year the girls flew up to Columbia, Mo., and enrolled in the Stephens Air College, flying home for holidays. But this year, because their parents wanted them nearer home, Frances and Elizabeth are attending the University of Georgia and flying every afternoon.

Taking turns at the controls, both have the same number of solo hours. When they take a passenger along they settle who will fly by flipping a coin. Their prize passenger is their mother, who, after her first airplane flight with them, was bitten by the flying bug and is now outbidding her husband for a turn in the air.

Having completely sold their parents on flying, the twins are planning on buying a larger, faster ship and starting their own school of instruction after the war. They'll probably get plenty of outside help, too, for both wear wings—one presented by a Navy pilot, the other from a Marine Corps flyer.

Father-Son Team Pulls For B-25s

A 12th Air Force Base in Corsica, (AP)—When Sgt. Ernest L. Booth and Cpl. Joe Yearwood team up to help keep this air base's American B-25 Mitchell bombers flying, it is a real family proposition. Booth, Yearwood's step-father, asked for the boy and cooperative army officers saw to it that red-tape did not stand in the way of a family reunion.

Yearwood is a veteran of the Tunisian, Sicilian and Italian campaigns. Booth, 35, came to North Africa in Feb. 1943 and to Corsica last April.

Now Booth, a paint specialist, and Yearwood, an assistant crew chief, bunk together and work together.

LOCAL SAILORS AID IN RESCUE

Manistique Boys Survive Typhoon In Western Pacific Ocean

Two Manistique boys, Burnette Greene, son of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Greene, and John Davis, son of Mr. and Mrs. Mickey Davis, participated in the rescue of a number of American sailors, survivors of the wreckage of three destroyers lost in a typhoon in the western Pacific before Christmas. It was learned here. Over 500 American sailors lost their lives in this tragedy at sea.

The two Manistique boys were aboard a destroyer escort that survived the storm and picked up 55 sailors in the water after machine gunning sharks that swarmed around the men struggling in the water.

The lost destroyers, announced by the Navy, were the Spence, the Hull, and the Monaghan. Only 91 members of the three crews were saved, and all of them only after being in the water for upwards of 10 hours in a storm during which the wind velocity exceeded 135 miles per hour.

The Spence was a 2,100 ton Fletcher class destroyer of recent construction and the Hull and Monaghan were 1,500 tonners of the older Farragut class. Only six were saved from the 250 man crew of the Monaghan and 62 were saved from the Hull. One officer and 22 men were saved from the crew of the Spence.

The Hull was the first ship to capsize in the storm. A change in course caught her in a trough and the ship's rudder became jammed. She lay broadside to the gale, taking tremendous seas on her side. She slipped over on her starboard side at 12:10 p. m., then she buckled and sank. The Monaghan went down 20 minutes later, followed by the Spence. The first rescue occurred at 10 p. m. that night from the destroyer escort on which Greene and Davis were aboard.

An account of that rescue revealed by the Navy officer follows:

"A chief radioman was out on deck trying to rig a new radio mast in the darkness when he saw a tiny light twinkling in the darkness. It was one of the Hull survivors. His lifejacket had a one-cell flashlight attached to it. After much difficulty the trooper escort got the survivor aboard. Then she circled the area looking for more.

"When daylight came the ship had saved 17 men. All through the next two days she hunted and eventually she picked up a total of 55 men.

"Sharks were milling about one group of men holding to a raft and around some other survivors. We turned our machine guns on the sharks and drove them away. The barracuda also were around. Strangely there were no reports of sharks actually attacking anyone.

"Apparently they had been attracted by blood in the water from the wounded. One man had his fingers torn out of his foot. We decided he had been struck by a barracuda.

"One of the enlisted men got his life caught in some underwater gear beneath the ship. He was dragged under the ship but he came up the other side and was pulled aboard. Veteran sailors said it was the only case of keel hauling they had ever known about in a lifetime at sea."

Mrs. Rachael Turner, 62, of Naubinway, who was well known in Manistique, died Sunday at the Newberry clinic and was buried Wednesday at Naubinway, with services at the St. Stephen's church.

Mrs. Turner's husband, Arthur, who died six years ago, was a well known business man at Naubinway.

Mrs. Turner is survived by three daughters and one son. They are Mrs. Gertrude Jones, Grand Rapids; Mrs. Hannah Williams, Naubinway, and Beatrice, of Flint; and Albert Turner. Two sisters and a brother also survive. They are Mrs. Jason Carpenter, Trout Lake and Mrs. Earl MacIntyre, Battle Creek, and Will Rogers, of Eagle River.

U. P. WILL GET HOSPITAL-GRAY

Legion Head Says Plans Assured For Veterans Facilities

Dr. Charles Gray, department commander of Michigan, American Legion, told Manistique Legionnaires and Auxiliary members Wednesday night that a veterans hospital of at least 250 bed size will be constructed in the upper peninsula of Michigan and that a new tuberculosis hospital will also be built in the peninsula, the latter probably in the western end of the peninsula.

Dr. Gray declared that the veterans administration has already launched a hospital building program in Michigan to care for the servicemen of the present war and their predecessors in previous wars. He explained that the veterans hospital at Dearborn, originally a 350 bed hospital, is being enlarged to accommodate 600 persons by Jan. 1, 1946 and that an additional space for 500 more beds also has been authorized.

The speaker outlined the accomplishments of the American Legion during the past year, emphasizing that the veterans organization has pledged itself to be of service to the returning soldiers of World War II.

Others who spoke briefly at the Legion banquet, held at the Methodist church in honor of state officials of the organization, were Mrs. Edna Alber, department president of the Auxiliary; L. H. Alexander, adjutant and welfare officer; Oliver Allard, vice commander; George Beaudoin, upper peninsula field service officer; Harvey Quick, 11th district committeeman; Mrs. Odile Miller, 11th district auxiliary president; Jay H. Brown, national field secretary; and Addison Alguire, of the state office of veterans affairs.

Dr. George Shaw served as toastmaster at the banquet, which was attended by approximately 100 local Legionnaires and their wives.

Health Nurses In America Honored; Work Here Listed

In recognition of the wartime services of public health nurses in America, today, January 26, has been established as Public Health Nursing Day by the U. S. government, the Schoolcraft-Alger health department announced yesterday, in revealing the accomplishments of the county nurse, Miss Lydia Strom, for the past year.

Nurses in public health service have been declared essential by federal agencies and their work has been very important in the maintenance of civilian health.

The services of the county nurse is that of a family health counselor, coordinating medical and social services for the principles of healthful living and the prevention of disease.

During the year 1944 Miss Strom made the following calls:

Many Visits to Homes

Communicable diseases 193, of which 118 were for scarlet fever, 46 for whooping cough, 12 for measles, 14 for chicken pox and 58 for tuberculosis; 123 visits to expectant mothers, 145 post partum cases, 359 visits to infants, 141 to pre-school children, 162 to school children and 95 teach interviews, 59 adult health calls and 46 crippled children visits.

In addition to these activities, the health nurses assisted with school examinations at which the following immunizations were given: 494 toxoids and 500 booster toxoids, 790 vaccinations. The nurse also arranged for and attended crippled children's clinic. Fifteen crippled children were examined by Dr. Elzinga at Escanaba in August.

The county nurse selected seven children to attend the Bay Cliff health camp last summer and assisted in three x-ray clinics held here in 1944. Miss Strom also assisted with arrangements for the blood donor clinic held at the Elks club in September.

In 1944 the community health service course was integrated with the senior home economics course, designed to equip girls for parenthood. Local graduate nurses participated in the program and the county nurse taught the unit on maternal and infant health and the child from one to six years of age.

Dr. Cooperstock conducted a children's clinic here in August in which the county nurses assisted. She also assisted in the distribution of layette material and cod liver oil within the county. At Christmas, Miss Strom prepared the Christmas basket list and assisted the Woman's club in making the holiday baskets and in distributing them.

The nurse also assists Joseph Shipman in the monthly rehabilitation clinics held at the health department, at which physically handicapped are given assistance in vocational training.

We seem to see in the soft dim light A face we loved so best And think of her when the sun's last ray

Go down in the far off west; We miss you no less as the time passes on Than we did on the day of your going.

For absence can never close the door of our hearts And the lamp of our love is still glowing.

Your heart was the truest in all the world; Your love the best to recall; For no one on earth could take your place.

You are still the nearest of all. Sadly missed by her husband, children and grandchildren.

U. S. RAILWAY BURDEN HEAVY

Public Fails To Realize Critical State Of Transportation

BY PETER EDSON
NEA Washington Correspondent

Washington, D. C.—U. S. transportation is in a tougher predicament than most people appreciate.

When Office of Defense Transportation Director Col. J. Monroe Johnson slapped a four-day ban on the shipment of everything except war freight over storm-bound Chicago-to-New York railroad lines the other day, he may have been setting a pattern for drastic action that might have to be repeated from time to time throughout 1945. There have been other war-time local embargoes before—on the movement of tank cars or refrigerator cars to or from certain areas, on seasonal passenger travel to resort centers and such things. But when the railroads in Ohio, Indiana, Pennsylvania and New York got tied up by the mid-January blizzards, ODT told them they could discontinue passenger service wherever it was necessary to keep the war freight rolling, and they did. Furthermore, they can do it again any time it is necessary to relieve congestion.

If the embargo had been put on non-war shipments in the north-eastern area ten days earlier, the transportation situation today might be a little better. As it is, the railroads will be feeling the effects of the storm for six or eight months, says Col. Johnson—perhaps right up to the annual peak freight movement after the harvest season next fall.

Heavy Load Ahead

October has traditionally been the month of heaviest rail freight movements in the United States. But last November the tonnage went up instead of down, December beat November and January might have beaten December if it had not been for storms in the lower Great Lakes states. With war production schedules calling for increased output during the next six months, there will be no slack summer season and 1945 looms ahead as the toughest year the American transportation system has ever had to face.

The sad facts of this situation have not yet registered on the American public, says the ODT director, despite all the demands and campaigns to keep people off the trains. Citing statistics to show that the railroads and trucks and buses are having to carry more passengers and freight with no more equipment than they had before the war does no good. When one individual feels that he has to travel, he goes, frequently taking his family with him. Yet it is only the top 10 per cent of the traffic that causes the overcrowding and the hardship. If only that top 10 per cent of the load could be taken off, there would be no problem.

No one has yet come forward with any idea of how travel can be rationed. Permitting travel only on priorities involves a cumbersome amount of overhead which would probably cause more confusion than it is worth. Germany has solved the problem by running passenger trains only three days a week. That's one way out.

Warning Finally Heeded
ODT's Colonel Johnson has been bearish on the transportation situation ever since he took office last May and he has been remarkably right in calling the turn. Seven months ago he was warning that all conventions should be cancelled, but they have only now been stopped.

In June he was warning that railroad and bus accommodations may be cancelled without notice, and that has now come to pass.

He beat the drums for "vacations at home" all last summer, and is preparing to intensify that crusade during the coming summer.

He is as bearish on the automobile, truck, bus and tire situations as he is on railroads. Yet he believes that somehow, the job will be done. His motto all through the war effort has been, "Prepare for the Worst." It is a realistic outlook on war. You never get disappointed that way, and most

Webster Cub Pack Gets Under Way

At a meeting held at the Webster school, with officials of the Webster P. T. A., definite headway was made toward the organization of a Cub Pack in the school, under the sponsorship of the local P. T. A. Those in attendance were Mesdames, John Auskis, chairman, A. Ottensman, of the American war effort setbacks have come from being over-optimistic.

Barnett Mills, Gunnar Nelson, T. Johnson. The meeting was under the direction of Mrs. John Auskis. An explanation of the first steps necessary to successfully get a Cub Pack started, was to solicit the interest of the parents of prospective boys desiring to become Cubs. This was to be obtained, through the cooperation of an attendance committee, with chairman of P. T. A. as its chairman. Their work would be to invite all parents to attend the gathering of instruction for parents in Cubbing.

Letters of invitation are going out to all parents of prospective

Cubs, explaining the purpose of such meetings. As soon as the return reply of each parent is received, a definite date will be set for the first meeting.

A goodly number of boys were present at the first meeting of the boys held recently, which surely shows that interest is high in the area of the Webster school. Parent cooperation is therefore necessary, in order to organize properly.

At the start of 1944, there were 1,450,000 rubber-tired tractors on American farms. Many of these now are obsolete and must be replaced by postwar construction.
